

THE GLEICHEN CALL

VOLUME XXXIV NO. 4

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY APRIL 9, 1941

SUBSCRIPTION $2.00 PER YEAR

ENLISTMENT FOR PRESENT WAR COMPARED WITH '14-'18

Comparing enlistments of Gleichen and District with those of the War of the War of 1914-18 the facts brought to light are interesting.

Enlistments in the last war by years are as follows:

1914	26
1915	30
1916	34
1917	34
1918	44
Killed in action	not listed above.	61
Total		234

War broke out on August 4, 1914 and to the end of 1918—a period of 17 months—there were 1144 enlistments. In this war which has been going on for over two years now there have been from Gleichen and districts enlisted for active service, 24 less than in approximately the same length of time for the last war.

Prior to the 1914-18 conflict, consideration was given to the raising of these parts were reserve officer in the British army and the majority of them were being called up a year or so after war started. The ages of these reservists were anywhere from 30 to 45 years old. Those men who enlisted from here also were on in years much older on the average than the present enlistment. It is interesting to note that most of the soldiers in the 1914-18 war were born in the Old Country, English, Scotch and Irish. The casualty lists of Canadians for all parts of Canada, printed day after day, showed that almost all the Canadians were born in the Old Country.

This time most of the enlistments are Canadian born and are young men ranging in age from 18 to 25. Very few if any have reached their 30th birthday. The men born in the few young men about town there are some and they have tried to enlist but were rejected owing to being medically unfit. One I know tried to enlist, as time goes on, the district has been getting up with the record of the last war.

Gleichen has done exceptionally well, much better than many places of the same size. There are no men who are not fit for enlistment. There is nothing but enviable. Not long ago the writer was in one of these towns and asked a couple of citizens why there are so few enlistments of that town and district and the reply was: "Well, the recruits have not been here yet."

OTTAWA LETTER

BY DR. F. W. GERSHAW

For the past month the government has been bombarded by members from British Columbia, the prairies and the Maritimes for war industries in their particular districts. In the whole of Canada there is only one government industry and that is for the making of a few guns at Saskatoon. The British Columbia members report that there is a lot of unemployment in the Coast and a great need of more contracts for war material there. The government is guided by the advice of the technical experts but for Canadian orders, the policy of spreading out the work has been adopted in a limited way lately. Nova Scotia was once a great place for ship building and the claim is that the old yards there should be put to work. The Minister of Defense said for the Nova Scotia men not to expect ships to be obtained for the building of such ships. The builders had been asked to tender but the lowest bid was $25,000. more than the bids from other places so no contract has been made in the native province. It takes longer to train sailors than to build ships.

The Minister of Finance pledges the budget for the coming year are kept secret until the very last minute. Seven years ago an increase in the tax on sugar was announced to take place at 3 p.m. on that day. It was then after 3 p.m. in Ottawa and 4 o'clock in Vancouver and some dealers began killing by buying sugar before 3 p.m. there. This year it was rumored that there might be an increase in the tax. It was only a surmise but the Good Friday will be a holiday and at the present time the local sports are wondering just how they will spend the day.

Debott, N.S., has now come into the lime light. He was never heard of until the 22nd Battery of Gleichen blew in there.

Tom Lowney who is in the Canadian army in Eastern Canada spent the week end in town. At the present time he is visiting his parents in High River.

Germany's invasion of Greece and Yugoslavia Saturday night kept many Gleichen radio listeners up late. They were well informed of Sunday morning. They all admit they did not know any more when they did hit him they were at 11 p.m.

The Gleichen Red Cross Society is having a dance Monday night—Easter Monday in the Community Hall and preparing for a big crowd. T. H. Jessel will have charge of the program. They are going to give to entertain all those who do not care to go. The ladies of the Red Cross will provide the eats at midnight and Jimmy May's Merry Men will supply the entertainment for the dance.

More cows were being milked in Alberta on December 1st, 1940 than on the same date in 1939. While 277,000 cows were being milked in 1939, a year later there were 300,000 cows at the time of the census. The increase was probably due to better prices for milk products and the desire of Alberta farmers to contribute to the war effort by supplying more food.

The ladies army in Eastern Canada for all parts of Canada, printed day after day, showed that almost all the Canadians were born in the Old Country.

CHAPTER I.

"Are you Miss Devona Raeburn?" Started Devona turned, faced a pair of the bluest eyes she'd ever seen.

The tall young man studied her deliberately. "Yes, of course. Same beautiful big eyes. Same perfect mouth. Your mother over again—brunette version. I should have known."

Devona, still perched on the battered steamship trunk where she'd been marooned for the last anxious hour, responded with a smile. "Ah—yes, Mr. Lester. Another pleasure greater—or is it flattery? strange women just a pernicious habit?"

He grinned then and Devona felt her heart heat.

"No—neither. But if every ocean:

rutting something? Couldn't I take a train or—" He shrugged that aside. "I'm told to meet a little schoolgirl who'll sing tenor to my hand. 'Instead.' He started at her again frankly. "I find you."

Devona laughed, glanced around the huge dock, restlessly now. "But I am terrified!" Or she had been, until now.

Date's thin smile travelled coolly from the jaunty feather on her hat to the tips of her trim suede pumps. "Yes, you look like it!"

"I'm the one that should be terrified."

Devona faltered, went down defeated while she fumbled for some bright retort. After all, 4 years in boarding schools or gray-walled convents, or cruise mining camps had not like a weeping politico or player-pianist. Date's smile didn't even old friends of VapoRub.

"How we can rug your luggage there!" Date said, "—you wait here. I'll dig up an inspector."

Devona watched him stride off and wondered what it was about him that made her think of North Viking, and the longships, ships of Valhalla. He wasn't tall, handsom but his smile and the clear, blue flame of his eyes made you forget that. And his nice voice. Voices meant something. She'd learned that out-of-the-way corners of the world where language doesn't matter and you detected friend or enemy from the shadows in his voice. There were no shadows in Date's deep tones.

Somehow Date had seemed good service too. The inspection was brief, and in another moment Date was tipping a porter, leading Devona to a smart blue coupe at the curb. They were just outside the tiny building just across the street from the station.

"To tell you the truth," he tried to make Palm Springs by dinner," he said as he guided the powerful car into the stream of traffic, heading toward the city. "We're taking a place out there for the winter, you know."

Devona didn't know, but she nodded. There was so much she didn't know about her beautiful actress mother. But, she hugged the thought of the shadows."

ago I thought she was the most beautiful woman I'd ever seen." Then, abruptly as though it waited for a train, right, "Did anyone ever tell you that once you've had a couple of feasts?"

Flushing, Devona hid her embarrassment behind a laugh. "You look like your mother!"

"Me? I'm the one that should be terrified." And "if anything ever happens to me, go to Vara. She'll love you."

The traffic light changed and the bus coupe moved swiftly ahead.

"She made a marvelous success of her career, hasn't she?" Devona persisted.

"On the stage, yes. She won't have anything to do with movies, you know. Devona's in the cold," Date says. She wants audience response. I guess she could have had some pretty sweet contracts, too."

"That sounds like it." Devona shivered. "I never money that mattered, Dad said."

She felt Date's glance flick across her face. "No?"

"Oh, no. Just so long as she could be in it."

"Doesn't seem you don't hate her?" he interrupted suddenly.

"Hate her?"

"She turned you out, didn't she, when you were a baby?"

"Oh, it wasn't like that!" Devona defended her instantly. "She had to give us up—for her art. I went with Daddy so I wouldn't be in the way and because Daddy needed me."

"Oh, I see. His smile had a strange little twinkle."

Obviously he didn't see, and that aroused a naggling little fear that had nipped the hem of her mind for days now. She sent a silent prayer to Bomber. What if Mother didn't want her? What if Dad had been mistaken?

Date shrugged aside that worry. Tense, overgrown from the shock of the explosion aboard a passenger launch and of her father's instant death.

But the great love—

Sharply she caught back that thought. School-girl dreaming over a fortune teller's promise? How Date would feel if he could read her thoughts!

Right now, he was guiding the big car in toward the curbing, snapping off the motor.

Fine English Tradition

A Letter To The New York Herald Tribune

I have read and heard a great many reasons why we should be proud of the British, but it seems to me that the most important one is our love and admiration of England and all it means. The British Empire has always stood for civilization, and progress, and law and order. There is something of epic grandeur in just the name of England.

To me England means Queen Elizabeth and the glories of her reign, of her art. It means dear old Dr. Johnson, and Charles Lamb working in the office of the East India Company by day and writing his essays at night with Mary. It means the great explorers like Forby walking through the Green Park, and Val D'artie on his farm in South Africa. It means Barchester Towers, and Jane Austen, and Katherine Mansfield, with her delicate, imaginative stories.

It means A. Edward Newton browsing in the old bookshops of his beloved London—and it means the music of Elgar, and the art of fighting and suffering that these things may be theirs and their children's forever.—Ruth Jerome Noble, New York.

Flowers are God's thoughts of beauty taken form to gladden man's heart and lifeforce.

In eastern lands they talk in flowers, in a land of the garden's loves and cares.—Percival.

Flowers are love's truest language.—Peter Benjamin.

There is not the least flowers but seems to hold up his head and to look pell-mell, in the secret sense of the goodness of its heavenly Maker.—South.

Every rose is an autograph from the hand of God on His world about us. He has inscribed His thoughts in these marvelous hieroglyphics which time and space have, these thoughts of ours been seeking to understand.—Theodore Parker.

Tribute To Banting

Made The Greatest Contribution To Medicine Since Galileo.

It is difficult to predict exactly what place Sir Frederick Banting will hold in medical history, but it will be a very high place indeed, for a man whose name is inseparably associated with the cure of diabetes, with particular disease, or some specific advance in surgery. Whenever diabetes and the insulin method is being mentioned Banting's name will probably be mentioned in connection with malapropos, Lister's with antiseptic surgery, Simpson's with chlorform and Ross' with red blood cells.

"Daughter of a strange destiny," the fakir had muttered, peering at the white sand and his bare feet. "A great sorrow and a great love enter your soul before each moon. And the love will be much cruel than the sorrow."

"Time out of lunch," he said, smiling at her. "And I hope you don't mind if I combine a little business with pleasure. After all, I'm just a poor, hard-working man, you know."

Devona glanced at the expensive well-tailored suit, at the handsome leather brief case he pulled off the back shelf. "No two harder-working," she teased, took his hand as he helped her out of the chair.

She set his head as he helped her out of the chair. "I'll be on relief pretty soon if this chap in here doesn't come through, with some information that I'm after," he said as they walked toward the ultra-modern office of the medical man where even in the monad morning a neon sign blazed EL MEXICANO in red letters. "This isn't a swank place, but the atmosphere is supposed to be romantic and the chilis is already cooking."

The chili and frijoles were excellent. And the "atmosphere" was even better. Devona thought a little later, the excellent wine, the dark beer, the Mexican girls. Even the names, some manager who brought them, thick, strong Mexican coffee himself, seemed chosen to match the "decor."

"Miss Raeburn may I present Mrs. Macbeth?" Date introduced him. Some Mexican looking as though he might have stepped out of a movie set or a romantic novel, bowed elegantly.

ANYONE CAN EASILY PLAY
THE POPULAR GAY GUITAR

Diagram Makes It Simple For You

After winter sports, how delightful to relax with a guitar and a song! Here is a simple plan that will help after you've learned the trick of accompanying a tune. You will need a small square of paper, some directions how to read the diagrams for the chords used in accompaniments. The diagrams are given for the "Little Brown Jug"—shown in our previous month's issue. Similar diagrams are given for all popular tunes.

The vertical lines are the five strings, the cross lines are the frets and the dots are the notes to be played. Just press the fingers of your left hand on the strings where the dots are.

Then, with your right hand, pluck the same strings over the sound hole, accompanying a tune, or accompanying a song, accompanying a tune, on the first beat. Just press the fingers of your left hand on the strings where the dots are.

A little practice and you'll be called a master.

Our 22-page instruction book explains the guitar in simple steps. Includes diagrams for chords, scales, etc. Gives tables of chords, seven popular tunes.

Not A Besieged Fortress

British Open To Shipping And Navy Controls Traffic Lanes

It is necessary to agree to the British Isles as a fortress under siege. In reality, however, the continent of Europe is more accurately described by this phrase in the opinion of J. W. T. Mason.

Claims by Germany that British control of shipping is a infringement of its rights to shipping from the western world and the Orient. The European continent, however, is locked within itself, unable to maintain commercial intercourse with the rest of the world because of the British navy's control of the ocean traffic lanes.

Claims by Germany that British control of shipping has been made only to stimulate home morale. There is not the slightest room for believing the claim.

The 58-year-old colored singer, native of Philadelphia, was presented the award on the stage of the Academy of Music before a distinguished audience that cheered as she requested. "I read in the big deep papers that the home front is safe."

"The money," she said, "shall enable some poor, unfortunate, but nevertheless talented people to do something of value that they have dreamed all their young lives."

The award was established in 1921 by Edward A. Bok for the person who has "performed an act or contributed to a service . . . calculated to advance the best interest of Phillips' diploma."

When Hitler Comes

The horse seems to be finished in the army, but it requires a lot of imagination to picture anybody shouting "A tank, a tank, my kingdom for a tank!"

With a speed-up of American shipbuilding for British account, Herr Hitler must have some small hope that he can crush the British mercantile fleet.

Taking No Chances

They take no chances on anything or anybody that drops from the sky or lands on the ground in rural England, he was confronted by a burly farmer armed with a gun, behind him was the hired man with a huge cudgel and bringing up the rear was the local housewife wielding an iron skillet. Hitler should heed this warning.

Daughter of a strange destiny," the old fakir had muttered. "A great sorrow and a great love will enter your soul before another moon." And the love will be more heart-breaking than the sorrow, he had added.

Close, from now on that would be different. Of course, she'd have vague bonding with Dad. She'd never regret a moment of it. But, and her lips trembled, now that he was gone she was lucky to have this new world to look forward to.

That's why Devona was going to play stand-in, temporarily. "That is, if it's O.K. with you."

"Of course, thank you so much for being so considerate, Devona. She should have known her mother would be too busy to meet her. Popular actresses don't go around meeting living men." Still, disappointed, pulled at her hair.

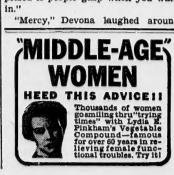

"Mother at all?" Date was saying. "I've played stand-in plenty of times—but never as parent. At that—" he scowled suddenly. "It's damned disconcerting."

Devona glanced up. "Am I inter-

Climaxing a complete change in administration of the Canadian War Services Fund, E. S. Heustis has been appointed Game Commissioner; it is announced by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines. With the passing of the current year's estimates, administration of the branch was transferred to Mr. Tanner's department from the agriculture department. D. E. Forland will be acting superintendent. H. B. Watkins will be acting director of fisheries. Mr. Heustis is at present acting assistant director of forests, and will continue to hold this position. Considered one of Canada's greatest revolver shots, he served in the R.C.M.P. prior to joining the department. Under the new arrangement, forest ranger will also serve as game warden, and the forestry division's radio intelligence service will also be used in the interest of game management. Observers have long urged this step. The timber supervisor has been an inspector fisherman in Calgary district, and for many years has been engaged in similar work. A far farms inspector will man shortly, it is announced.

One of the rarest forms of gall is a man asking you to have a beer and then taping you off for a five or ten hours plus your neighbour and for a week, while others are allowed to continue to party with the X, you feel constrained to set 'em up two or three times running in order to try and make him understand that you love him but have a note to meet on the following day. You know that the man who has to refuse being touched is generally the most embarrassed of the two. For all the sad words of tongue or pen; the saddest of these is: "Just lone me ten."

I do not believe myself that these things offer any real hope. I feel they would only result in reduced incomes and so in sadness and depression to farmers, and to all those who depend directly and indirectly upon the wheat industry. It seems to me, however, that there is one thing which can be done, and that is for government to banish the restrictions which prevent the importation of foreign goods; for these restrictions have unquestionably been the main reason for the reduced demands for wheat, so for the ending up of unnecessary purposes, hence for the low prices.

If after this war international trade is freed from restrictions, then foreign demands for Canadian wheat, for one feel sure, would soon greatly increase.

Have You Been Overlooked?

LET'S MAKE IT A WHIRLWIND FINISH!

("The Boys Rely on the Folks Back Home")

Thousands of men and individuals, in all parts of Canada have responded most recently to this Six-in-One Appeal. But there are other thousands equally ready to help. You may be one who has still to be heard from.

This is an appeal to every Canadian who has been overlooked. Wish for every Canadian, at home, an opportunity to support our men in uniform. The Fund is now well on the way to its objective. That objective definitely can be reached, probably exceeded.

For the sake of "The Boys", let's finish it with a bang that will raise resounding cheers from Coast to Coast!

How You Can Help

If you have not yet been called on by a War Services worker, and if you have not yet sent in your contribution, then you still know what you are going to do, and do it TO-DAY! Fill in the coupon below and mail it to your Provincial Headquarters at the address shown. If you know of some friends who have also been overlooked, get them to do the same.

The form is self-explanatory. Simply check on the left in the appropriate place, and if you enclose a remittance, make it payable to Canadian War Services Fund. An official receipt will be sent you by return mail.

Every Dollar Does Its Job
Remember—all monies contributed to the Canadian War Services Fund will be divided in accordance with government-approved budgets, amongst the six organizations embracing in this campaign.

A non-profit corporation with letters patent from the Dominion Government is your guarantee that every dollar that you subscribe will be properly applied to provide comfort, cheer, recreation and personal services to our fighting forces—services not provided in any other way.

Your contribution is urgently needed!

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE PRESS

This is one of a series of editorials specially designed to acquaint our readers with the various functions of the press in a democratic community

Commencing next week it is our intention to feature an editorial for a period of nine weeks outlining the functions of the press in a democratic community and its relationship to the various phases of community life. There is considerable ignorance among the public concerning the position and prerogatives of the press in the area it serves. The lack of knowledge of the functions of the press is due to the fact that the press itself, because it has neglected the important duty of making its readers conversant with the fundamental principles involved in the operation of a free press. The series seeks to make amends for the omissions of the past and to present in simple language an explanation of the main relationships between the newspaper, its readers in the community, its advertisers, and institutions within the realm it seeks to serve
